

This list includes some entries on which doubt was cast but which prove on collation to be correct. Many corrections derive from observations made by Messrs Couture, Furuli, Jonsson, Na'aman, Paolo, Stolper and van Driel.

Readers are reminded that the reading of broken or obscure signs is often simply a matter of opinion, and the staff of the British Museum can be just as fallible in making collations as anyone else; they can also change their minds!

Note that in Neo-Babylonian texts there is always the possibility of confusion (because of inaccuracy in either reading or writing) between months IV  ,

VII   and XI  , between months V   and X  , and between months IX   and XII  . The handbooks which suggest that these month-names are clearly distinguishable in the cuneiform script do not give warning of the range of possible error that arises from sloppy, defective or cursive writing. Readings which are critical for chronology should be collated again and again, preferably by different Assyriologists experienced in working with Neo-Babylonian texts.

It should be noted that in some cases where a date is given in the body of a text, but the date at the end of the text is broken away, then the first date is given as the date of the text; it is not possible to document this statement in detail.

Readers should also check the supplementary bibliography to volumes VI and VII printed in volume VIII p. 433-442.

J. Köhler and F. E. Peiser, Aus dem babyl. Rechtsleben (1890) is still to be checked (cf. ZA 79, 112 n. 15).

See in general the review by G. van Driel in ZA 79 (1989) 102-117.

For literary texts see also the review by M. Geller in BSOAS 53 (1990) 121-123.

The latest changes to this list were made on 18 December 1990. — I don't know if this is still true!
